Dear Deane Shapiro,

I thoroughly enjoyed -- and learned much from -- your recent article
on Judaism in JTP.

Could you possibly send me two reprints? I know two rabbis (one is my father) who would like to read your article, I'm sure. If you are A workshop with Zalman Schachter and just growing older -- I am 43 -- have turned things around some. Like Gurdjieff said, you have to come to terms with the religion of your childhood at some point. I can now pray, although I find it much more effective when chanted or sung.
So, your article really brought together a number of latent positive strands in my reinvolvement with my childhood religion.

Thanks in advance.
